About one month ago, I called the United States Patent Office asking for an time extension on my patent process. I also requested an updated copy of my patent, in order to correct my mistakes. Later that week, I also faxed a letter requesting a time extension, and a copy of my patent. Included in that letter was my credit card number, so I would be sure to obtain a time extension, and a copy of my patent. I was charged 20 dollars, for the price of sending me my patent material. However, I was not charged any monies for the extension process to take place.

Because of that I am very worried about receiving my time extension. It has been a very lengthy process getting all the necessary information together to make a my patent a viable sellable product. This process is almost over. However I need a little more time to take care of everything. So I am requesting a two month extension, from 01-07-05. Here is my credit card number and expiration date:
